Drive for the children

By Darren Lum

The Pinestone Resort and the Mulligan Club are asking golfers to drive with purpose this summer by golfing at their 18-hole course.

A percentage of sales (about $6 a round) from the next 750 rounds at the Pinestone golf course will be donated to the Children's Aid Foundation, which helps vulnerable children and youth involved with the child welfare system by funding programs in the areas of education, healing and recovery. Pinestone's general manager John Teljeur, who is a father of a five-year-old daughter, saw this opportunity as another way to give back. "Anything that gives kids better opportunities from the health, or wellness, or recreation side, I don't think we can do enough for our kids," he said.

As a bonus, the first 750 customers to book a standard rate tee time will receive a $25 gift certificate from the Mulligan Club.

Teljeur said helping children is important to him, whether it's the local food banks or sports efforts.

He adds this kind of initiative is what the resort is about when it comes to marketing and helping the community.

"This is a perfect scenario for us because not only does it promote what we're trying do, but it also helps people at the same time," he said.

The Pinestone has a $5,000 goal for the foundation because it is a realistic figure considering the time left in the season, he said.

This is just the start for the local resort.

Teljeur promises the Pinestone will be more public with its efforts to help the community.

The idea to do something to benefit the foundation came from Wayde Greer of the Mulligan Club, he said.

"To me, when you mention kids, it's a no-brainer at that point," he said.

Call the Pinestone Resort for information at 705-457-1800.

"These are the kids that are going to be running the show in 10 to 20 years," Teljeur said. "Do we not want to make sure they are set up the best way possible to do that?"

Witnesses make things up

Greg Cholkan
The Law Talkin' Guy

Subliminal: How Your Unconscious Mind Rules Your Behavior is a book written by Leonard Mlodinow, an American physicist, author and screenwriter. In its third chapter, the author provides an overview of past and current theories of memory. He also describes a number of interesting experiments which highlight the unreliability of this faculty. But these anecdotes don't generally focus on the often discussed topic of memory loss. Rather, they revolve around an equally fascinating phenomenon: memory addition.

In one famous experiment, a professor staged a conflict between himself and two students. The argument escalated, and ended when one of the students pulled out a gun and fired it. At this point, the professor told his audience that the whole clash had been a trick. He then asked them to write an account of what happened.

The audience members' error rates, which included additions, varied from 26 to 80 per cent. This kind of experiment became popular and came in many variations, including one in which a clown fought with a hatless gunman. Again, audience members made various embellishments. Their accounts included "many details describing the fine hat on the head of the man with the gun."

More recent experiments confirm this tendency. The morning after the explosion of the space shuttle Challenger, a scientist had a group of students write down their experiences of the catastrophe. Three years later, he asked the same students to once again describe their experiences without referencing their notes.

"Not one of the accounts was entirely correct, and about one-quarter of them were entirely wrong." In an even bolder experiment, researchers created fake photos of people riding in hot air balloons. About "half the subjects recalled memories of the balloon trip" that never was.

Witnesses are not immune to this weakness and, often unknowingly, add inaccurate details when being questioned. It is up to the lawyers and, ultimately, a judge to determine whether these additional facts are relevant to the case at hand and whether they were added intentionally. And a good judge will know that even though people will inadvertently fill in memory gaps by makings things up, they "do have a good memory for the general gist of events."

Thanks to everyone who came to the wills and estates open house last week! We really appreciate the effort people made to come to our office and meet us.

Devolin announces $138,200 in funding

Local MP Barry Devolin, on behalf of the Honourable Gary Goodyear, Minister for the Federal Economic Development Agency for Southern Ontario (FedDev Ontario), announced $138,200 in funding through the Canada 150 Community Infrastructure Program for three separate projects in Haliburton County.

The Township of Minden Hills will get $73,500 to renovate the S.G. Nesbitt Memorial Arena and Community Centre while the Municipality of Dysart et al will receive $50,000 to improve Rotary Beach Park on Head Lake and the Municipality of Highlands East will use $14,700 to repair the arena flooring at the Keith Tallman Memorial Arena.

"Through the Canada 150 program, we are investing $150 million across Canada to rehabilitate, renovate and expand existing public infrastructure for community use," said Devolin. "This program is a key part of our government's plan to create jobs, growth and long-term prosperity. It is also a key part of a government-wide approach to celebrating Canada's 150th anniversary of Confederation in 2017."

Projects have been selected based on program criteria, including the extent to which funding was leveraged from other sources, construction-readiness, and linkages to Canada 150.

The theme of this anniversary is "Canada: Strong. Proud. Free."

Black out survival

Living Large

Humour by Steve Galea

If you are wondering which family member or friend might survive in a post apocalyptic future, just wait till we get a power outage and watch. The odds are good that after five minutes you'll come to the conclusion that humanity is done for.

Modern humans do not handle black outs well these days – unless, of course, their phones and laptops are charged up. Then we do just fine.

It wasn't always like this. As late as the 1850s we did quite well in black outs or night time as they were called back then.

Here are 10 things to do that will break the ice at a black out.

1. Weep openly. No one will blame you. Technology has abandoned you and all is lost. Plus you'll have to start that Candy Crush level all over again.
2. Push a chair down the stairs and say. "Ouch! Ouch! Ouch! Ouch! Ouch!" in conjunction with this.
3. Walk into the darkest room in the place and ask, "Hi, I'm from NASA. Did anyone here accidentally stare directly into the solar eclipse?!"
4. Yell, "Ha! Now that's what I call mind control!"
5. Walk into the room and say, "Great! Right in the middle of me collecting my urine sample."
6. Ask, "Anyone want to play darts?"
7. Yell, "The Aztec Calendar was right! Now bring me a virgin!"
8. Phone a computer help line and ask them to walk you through lighting a candle.
9. Mutter, "You don't pay one little hydro bill…..
10. Say, "It's time to barbecue. Has anyone seen the charcoal?"

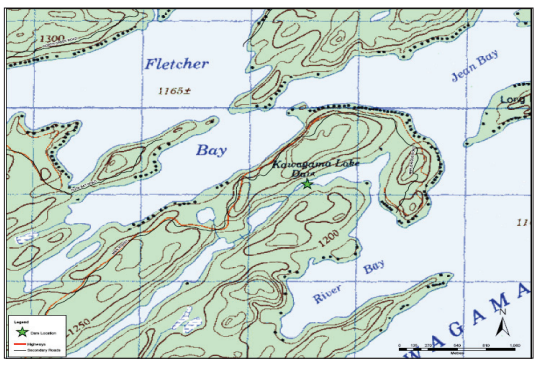
Kawagama Lake Dam
Notice of Intention to Proceed
Category B - Class EA for MNR Resouurce Stewardship and Facility Development Projects



The Ministry of Natural Resources and Forestry (MNRF) is seeking comments on its intention to proceed to modify the Kawagama Lake Dam to meet the requirements of the Operating Plan for Kawagama Lake under the Muskoka Water Management Plan.

A Category B project evaluation and consultation process was completed in March 2007 in accordance with the Class Environmental Assessment for MNR Resource Stewardship and Facility Development Projects, and it identified no significant adverse environmental effects. Following the submission of the final Project Evaluation Report by Jacques Whitford, funding was not available to complete the project. Funding is now available to complete this project and the purpose of this notice is to complete the Environmental Assessment requirements, to allow MNRF to proceed with project implementation.

The project site is located at the outlet of Kawagama Lake, in the County of Haliburton within the Township of Algonquin Highlands east of the Town of Dorset (refer to map). The project will address needed repairs to stoplogs, stoplog gains and the overhead gantry on the dam as well as provide concrete and masonry repair and the installation of a new safety railing. The project includes the lowering of a section of the southern wingwall to provide high water level overflow relief. In addition, the project will undertake to upgrade the condition the dam access road.

The implementation of the project was previously deferred due to funding constraints, and now MNRF wishes to proceed. The project and its potential environmental effects remain unchanged. For further information on the project, to inspect the project file or to submit comments please contact:

Dave Macpherson, C.E.T.
Engineering Technologist
Ministry of Natural Resources and Forestry
1350 High Falls Road, Bracebridge, Ontario, P1L 1W9

If at the end of this notice period MNRF considers that there are no significant outstanding concerns the MNRF may proceed with implementation of the undertaking without further public notice.

Where there are outstanding concerns about this project that cannot be resolved in discussion with the MNRF, concerned parties have an opportunity to formally request the Minister of the Environment and Climate Change issue a Part II Order requiring the project to be subject to an individual assessment under the Environmental Assessment Act. As this decision rests with the Minister of the Environment and Climate Change, please direct your inquiries in this regard to the Minister, Ministry of the Environment and Climate Change, 135 St. Clair Ave. W., 12th Flr, Toronto, Ontario, M4V 1P5. Requests must be received by the Minister within the 30 day comment period, which expires September 10, 2015, and copied at the same time to the MNRF at the address below.

Comments and personal information regarding this project are collected under authority of the Environmental Assessment Act to assist MNR in making decisions. Comments not constituting personal information as defined by the Freedom of Information and Protection of Privacy Act, will be shared among MNR and others as appropriate, and may be included in documentation available for public review. Personal information will remain confidential unless prior consent to disclose is obtained. This information may be used by MNR to seek public input on other projects. Rabid bat prompts warning from health unit

The Haliburton, Kawartha, Pine Ridge District Health Unit is warning residents to be cautious around bats after receiving confirmation that a bat tested positive for rabies in the Brighton area.

Rabies is almost always a fatal disease caused by a virus that affects the central nervous system of warm-blooded animals, including humans. Rabies is transmitted when there is contact with the saliva of an infected animal through a bite, lick or scratch. A post-exposure vaccine is available for humans in the event of contact with a rabid animal.

Although the percentage of rabies in bats is low across Ontario, bats are wild animals and should not be approached or touched. Never try to catch a bat or keep one as a pet. If you have bats living on your property and want to remove them, contact a professional pest control company or wildlife removal company.

"Contact with bats, and all wild animals, should be avoided," says Richard Ovcharovich, manager of environmental health with the HKPR District Health Unit.

Bats in the home can be a nuisance and potential hazard to you and your family. Bats are also capable of transmitting rabies to humans and other animals. Although most animal bites are readily apparent, bites inflicted by bats on, an infant, a child or those with cognitive impairments, may not be felt or leave any visible bite marks.

Please follow these instructions when it comes to bats:

- If you suspect you may have been bitten or had contact with a bat, report this to both your family doctor and the HKPR District Health Unit at 1-866-888-4577.
- If you discover a bat outdoors that is injured, acting strange or dead, do not touch it.
- If you are bitten or scratched by a bat that is discovered in your home, leave the room, close the door and contact a wildlife removal company. Do not touch a bat with your bare hands. If there was no human contact (bite or scratch) open a window and allow it to get out.
- As bats can transmit the rabies virus to domestic pets such as dogs and cats, ensure pet vaccinations are up to date.
- If you suspect your pets or livestock have come in contact with a rabid animal, contact the Canadian Food Inspection Agency (CFIA) at 905-513-2850.
- Bat-proof the home. If bats are found in the home, the person should seek advice from an animal control or wildlife conservation authority

Blue-green algae turns up in area lakes unexpectedly

If you're in or on the water this summer, be on the lookout for microscopic organisms that can make a splash for all the wrong reasons.

Blue-green algae (BGA) has surfaced in some area lakes over the past few summers, posing potential health problems for anyone who swims, drinks or uses the water. That is why this year, the Haliburton, Kawartha, Pine Ridge District Health Unit is again urging residents, cottagers and visitors who use local lakes and waterways to be on the lookout for BGA and to take precautions if they spot it.

"Blue-green algae can form on local lakes, especially when conditions are right for it," says Richard Ovcharovich, manager of environmental health with the HKPR District Health Unit. "If you detect serious signs of blue-green algae in a lake or local waterway, avoid using the water. Any exposure to the water, be it drinking, swimming, bathing, cooking or washing, can lead to health problems."

Consuming water with blue-green algae can result in headaches, fever, diarrhea, abdominal pain, nausea and vomiting. According to Ovcharovich, boiling the water won't help either, as this kills the blue-green algae resulting in the release of more toxins into the water.

BGA, also known as cyanobacteria, are primitive microscopic organisms that occur naturally in lakes, bays and inlets around the world. Normally, the algae are barely visible, but during warm weather the algae can rapidly increase in shallow, still waters to form a large mass called a bloom. Dense blue-green algae blooms can make the water look like a bluish-green pea soup, or a shiny paint slick. Most algae blooms are short-lived and will break down in a few days or weeks.

While many forms of blue-green algae are harmless, some forms produce toxins that can be harmful to humans and animals. "The extent of how sick people can get depends on the type of BGA and how long they are exposed to the toxins," Ovcharovich says.

The health unit wants to raise awareness about the blue-green algae problem by helping people spot it, determine its severity and identify what actions to take to deal with it. Information on how to identify different categories of BGA is available at any local Health Unit office or by visiting www.hkpr.on.ca. In general, blue-green algae can be placed into three categories:

Category 1: Water appears cloudy, but you can still see through it. There is no health effect expected at this stage, although swimming is discouraged, especially if you cannot see into the water.

Category 2: Water colour changes in appearance, and algae may appear in clusters or flakes in the water (like a pea puree).

Category 3: This is a dense bloom, resembling a paint spill or forming a scum on the water. The algae is easily swept by the wind and deposited near the shore.

For blue-green algae that falls into either category 2 or 3, people are advised to avoid swimming or using water for drinking, cooking, rinsing foods or washing dishes. Pets should also be prevented from entering or drinking the water. Unaffected areas of the lake can be used as usual, and recreational water activities can resume 24 hours after the bloom has disappeared.

"People who draw water from lakes or slow-moving rivers where there are frequent BGA blooms may want to find an alternate water source such as a drilled well, a dug well far from shore, or a water holding tank filled with water from a licensed water treatment plant," Ovcharovich suggests.

Art on the Dock

Watercolour artist Wilf McOstrich drew the winning entry for his painting entitled Mother Nature's Wardrobe following Art on the Dock last month.

The lucky winner was Leslie Fagan, who cottages with her partner Jeff Pinkney, on Kennisis Lake.

Leslie's ballot was drawn from among 50 entrants. To be eligible, entrants had to visit at least 10 out of the 20 Art on the Dock exhibit locations.

Art on the Dock was a studio-type tour around Big and Little Kennisis Lake on Saturday and Sunday, July 11 and 12.

More than 30 artists exhibited at 20 locations.

Exhibitors included water base painters, painters in oil, potters, photographers, quilters, fine woodworkers, decorative sign painters, mosaic tile workers, soap makers, sculptors, birdhouse makers, song and poetry writers, candle makers and artists in orgonite.

Exhibitors' work was shown on docks and decks, in garages and lofts, among the trees and at the waterside.

About half the visitors arrived by boat and many more toured the lake by road.

Visitors also arrived by canoe, kayak and one even swam to an exhibitor's dock!

KLCOA president Tony Lepine said, "Art on the Dock proved to be a very popular and successful initiative. Visitors appreciated the quality and diversity of arts and crafts being exhibited. They enjoyed touring around our beautiful lakes by boat or car on this beautiful summer weekend and the opportunity to reconnect with old friends and meet new ones. We were also glad to welcome visitors from across the Highlands to this event."
